Post 58, West Hancock fire districts approved

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has approved two new fire protection districts for the county.

The districts include Post 58 Fire Protection District and West Hancock Fire Protection District.

With the approval of the two new ones, the only section of the county lacking a fire protection district is the Clermont Harbor area, which does have a volunteer fire department, County Fire Services Coordinator Jay Marsh said.

A five-year plan for upgrading the county's fire protection system, presented to the supervisors by Marsh last month, calls for the creation of fire protection districts throughout Hancock County.

Marsh said it is likely that Clermont Harbor will eventually ask for creation of a district to cover the remaining territory, but he did not know when such an application would be made.

Post 58, named for the American Legion post which helped the fire department in the Standard Community get established, is based at a station next to the post home on Highway 603.

Post 58 has the newest volunteer fire department in the county, created a little more than a year ago, and was the last one needed in order for the county to have complete coverage by volunteer fire departments or full-time, paid fire departments.

The latter include Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Diamondhead.

The district covers 58 square miles from the northern Hancock County line and is bordered by the Kiln and Fenton fire protection districts.

The West Hancock district is based in Pearlinton and covers about 40 square miles, including the Port Bienville and Pearlinton areas. The district is bordered by the BaySide Park Fire Protection District on the west side and by the Stennis Space Center buffer zone on the north.

Commissioners for West Hancock include John Wall, one year; Nathan Acker, two years; Camille Lichtenstein, three years; Larry Burrows, four years; and Ed Moffatt, five years.

Commissioners for the Post 58 district are scheduled for approval by the supervisors on Monday.

Fire protection districts provide additional revenue for volunteer fire departments and other activities directly related to fire protection, such as installation of hydrants, by allowing a special property tax of up to four mills.

A district must exist for one year before it becomes eligible to receive tax revenue.

The supervisors have also recently approved an amendment to the document creating the Leetown Fire Protection District, which covers the extreme northwestern part of the county.

By adding some territory, Leetown extended its service area so that its borders now match those of surrounding districts. The original agreement had left a small area of the county without the additional protection a district can provide.

Another recent improvement in fire protection in the county was the installment Thursday of a cascade system at the Diamondhead Fire Station, Marsh said.

The system is used to refill firefighters' airpicks and was purchased after a donation drive which began last year. It was placed at Diamondhead for use by all of the county's fire departments.

Police have few clues in Waveland murder

BY D.C. HARVILL

Waveland Police have few clues in the Thursday morning shooting death of a Carriere man.

Christopher C. Ray, 48, called police at 3:39 a.m. Thursday saying he had been shot at Waveland Resort Inn, where he was staying at the time. Responding officers discovered that he had been shot three times, twice in the upper back and once in the hip, apparently with a .25 caliber firearm, according to Chief Donald Dorn.

Ray died while undergoing surgery, Dorn said.

Before going into surgery, Ray gave officers conflicting accounts of how the shooting occurred, according to Dorn.

"We don't know where he was when he was shot. One time he told us he was shot in his hotel room and another time he said he had been taken into the woods next to the hotel and shot. We checked in the woods and could not find any empty casings or blood," Dorn said.

As of Friday, the shooting was being considered a case of murder/robbery, according to the chief.

"We can't find his wallet or gold chains his wife said he was wearing, so it looks like it is a case of murder/robbery," Dorn said.

A Mississippi Highway Patrol investigator has been called in to assist Waveland Investigator Robert "Poochie" Tartavouille with the case.

Shrimper spends night floating on flipped boat

BY D.C. HARVILL

Firefighters rescued a Waveland shrimper Friday morning after he had spent the night holding on to his capsized boat.

Richard Bourgeois had just put his trawl boards overboard when they bogged down, causing his 18-foot Manchac skiff to capsize.

Bourgeois, 62, was shrimping approximately one mile offshore from Gulfside Methodist

Assembly near Buccaneer State Park when the accident happened just before dark Thursday evening.

Because his left leg was hurt when the boat flipped, he decided to remain with the boat, Bourgeois said.

"I usually have my life jacket on at night, but I hadn't put it on yet," he said.

Bourgeois said he could see several boats in the area but none could see him in the dark and they probably could not hear his calls over the noise of their own engines.

"About 7 a.m., I saw a plane flying over and waved to him. He dipped his wing and went on. Just after that, the firemen came and rescued me. I guess the guy in the plane called somebody. The Coast Guard pulled up just as I was walking out of the water," Bourgeois said.

A small rubber raft, donated to Waveland Fire Department several years ago after they rescued a child who floated offshore, was used in Friday's rescue.

"I had just caught some nice shrimp and hadn't cleaned them yet. When the boat flipped I lost them all. About a hundred seagulls came and ate them and the small fish in the catch. After they were gone the gulls just left me."

"I thought about the story of Captain Rickenbacker when he was shot down over the ocean and survived on seagulls that landed on his raft," Bourgeois said.

"I've picked up people out there who had sunk, but it's never happened to me before. I'm 62 and can't take what I used to," he added.

Bay authorities await autopsy information in Slidell man's death

BY DENA BISNETTE

Authorities are still awaiting details of an autopsy report on a man murdered in Bay St. Louis two weeks ago.

However, a continuing investigation has revealed more information about the circumstances in which 37-year-old Charles E. Daniels of Slidell, La., was killed, Bay St. Louis Police Detective Tom Burleson said Friday.

Daniels' body was found in a ditch in the 600 block of Keller Street July 26 when it was spotted by a pedestrian. So far, authorities know that he was killed by a shotgun blast.

An autopsy was performed in New Orleans later the same day.

Arrested and charged with capital murder was 17-year-old Gino Tillman of 763 Washington St., Bay St. Louis. Tillman was arrested the day the body was found and was jailed without bail.

Capital murder charges stem from the commission of another crime along with murder. In this case, Burleson said, the other crime was robbery.

The victim's car had been stolen and someone had gone through his wallet, Burleson stated.

Authorities have also discovered that Tillman was allegedly hitchhiking and that Daniels gave him a ride to Bay St. Louis.

CAR ART—Cinematographer Paul Cope, left, and Director Harrod Blank, take a break in Bay St. Louis Friday from a cross-country jaunt on which they are filming a documentary on car art. The duo's vintage Volkswagen Beetle, decorated by Blank while at the University of California at Santa Cruz, will be featured on educational television's Reading Rainbow, Blank said. The pair, and soundman David Silberberg (not pictured), were on the Coast visiting Blank's mother Gail Blank-Keenan and stepfather, Burt Keenan of Pass Christian. (Echo staff photo by D.C. Harvill)

Pilet named 'conservancy' chair of Friendship Oak

Mrs. William J. Gemmel of Diamondhead is the newly-elected regent of the Friendship Oak Chapter, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution and has announced the appointment of Joe Williams Pilet of Bay St. Louis as chairman of the chapter's Conservancy.

Mrs. Gemmel said, "Our chapter will place emphasis on preservation of our natural resources. The objectives of the founding Daughters were historical, educational and patriotic in scope, and to perpetuate the memory of the men and women who achieved American Independence. Our organization dates back to 1890 and was chartered by the United States Congress."

Pilet, a charter organizing member of the Friendship Oak chapter, has appeared on programs where she emphasized the importance of conserving resources and preserving our local history.

When interviewed she said: "Admittedly our people have been wasteful and careless. Too many beautiful trees have been needlessly felled. Our streams have been polluted. But we can't change yesterday...at this point we should wake up, smell the coffee and see what constructive things can be done about tomorrow."

"Every man, woman and child should take pride in our legacy and help to preserve and restore. We need to be reminded of what each of us can do to help. My column, which will begin Thursday, Aug. 10 issue of the Sea Coast Echo, will discuss what can be done. It will cover conservation of time, space, resources, birds and wildlife, flowers and trees, etc. and give a helpful hint here and there."

The feature will be titled 'This Land Is Your Land.'

Kapalama reopens

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Maintenance Department has reopened Kapalama Drive in Diamondhead.

However, the road is not yet paved, said Suzette Beech, a spokesperson for Maintenance Supervisor Sam Cuevas.

Motorists are asked to reduce their speed when using Kapalama Drive due to a large dip in the road, which is currently covered with clay gravel.

The road is expected to remain in its present state for about six weeks. The next phase of the repair work is expected to begin at that time.

Anner-Necaise Road, also in Beat Three, remains closed. The road has been closed for several months for a bridge repair project, which has not yet been completed.

Leave lights on Tuesday night in support of fight against crime

"Lights on means lights out for crime" will be the rallying cry Tuesday, Aug. 8 when Bay St. Louis joins the Philips Lighting Company and millions of Americans in supporting the sixth annual 'National Night Out Against Crime.'

More than 7,000 communities and 20 million citizens are expected to participate in the annual after-dark event this year.

'National Night Out,' endorsed by the National Association of Town Watch, the National Crime Prevention Council and other anti-crime organizations, urges homeowners, apartment dwellers and businesses to turn on their exterior lights for security and to spend a symbolic hour outdoors demonstrating solidarity against crime.

"We encourage everyone in our local neighborhoods to participate in National Night Out this year," said Mayor Edward Favre. "We believe that getting tough on crime at the local level is one of the best ways to fight this national problem."

The National Neighborhood Crime Watch Groups are commended in the Congressional Record of April 12, 1988, for declaring the second Tuesday in August as 'National Night Out.'

The Congressional Record cites the important role lighting plays in fighting crime and says that homes and businesses displaying some measure of indoor or outdoor lighting are less vulnerable to criminal activity than those which remain unlighted after dark.

Ammo plant funding granted through 1990

The U.S. House of Representatives voted 312-105 on Friday to pass the fiscal year 1990 defense appropriations bill, which includes $90 million for the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant.

The ammo plant funding was inserted into the appropriations bill in the Appropriations Subcommittee on Defense, and on Wednesday, the House Appropriations Committee approved it, a spokesperson for Representative Larkin Smith said.

The Senate is expected to take on defense appropriations in September.

The amount is enough to continue production of 155 mm ammunition, at the rate of 180,000 per year, at the ammo plant in Hancock County through the end of 1990.

The army had announced in January that the $640 million plant would be mothballed in phases, beginning in December 1989.

Smith said efforts to keep the plant open must continue and commented that the U.S. should continue pursuing ammunition sales to Korea and other foreign countries.

Unfamiliar seafood delicacies introduced

The program is part of the family-oriented Evening at The Aquarium series sponsored each month by GCRL and the Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Consortium. The free programs are open to the public.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

There will be an American Red Cross Blood Drawing on Wednesday, 2 to 7 p.m. at the Waveland American Legion Home, Coleman Avenue, Waveland.

The Hancock County Blood Bank is no different from others across the country, as our blood supply is low at this time of the year.

There is a need for a good drawing Wednesday as Lin Rutherford, blood drawing co-chairman for the Waveland American Legion said on Friday, that he would like to set a record for the number of units collected at a Hancock drawing.

As many of you know, Hancock Medical Center receives its blood supply from the American Red Cross.

It is hoped that all of those who can will donate a unit of blood on Wednesday, as one never knows when they or a member of their family will need blood.

The House of Representatives' approval for 1990 funding of the Mississippi Ammunition Plant is good news for many folks of the area.

There are so many residents of the area who are directly or indirectly affected by the Ammo Plant's plight.

The thing needed now is to somehow change the Army's plans on closing the facility in 1992.

We know many are involved in efforts of trying to keep the facility open which employs some 1,700 employees from the immediate area.

A group of active and former Marines will get together at 7 p.m. Thursday night at the VFW home on Third Street in Bay St. Louis to discuss the formation of a Marine Corps League Detachment.

Former Marines Jim Mallini and Gerald Necaise are the organizers for the group and I understand since I did a story last week, they have already had several inquiries.

We know there are a large number of former Marines residing in the area, and many should be interested in joining the league which is a veterans organization of the U.S. Marines. It is composed of Marines and former Marines with honorable service in excess of 90 days.

For further information call Mallini at 467-5949 or Necaise at 467-3095.

Wise use of time should be legislative priority

Next year's legislative session, although five months away, is shaping up to be one centered around several fiery, emotional and personal issues.

We already know that the Governor plans to introduce a measure aimed at bolstering education reform—the Education Reform II Bill. The Supreme Court recently handed down a ruling that will move the abortion issue from Capitol Hill to state capitals. Rapes for the state's employees, like any other pay hike proposal, are certain to demand attention.

Governmental reorganization is still on the table. And like every other legislative session, there will be the usual behind the scenes political scuffles. This year is likely to involve the Speaker and Speaker Pro Tem of the House.

House of Representatives is a hotbed of political activity, which will be the usual behind the scenes political scuffles. This year is likely to involve the Speaker and Speaker Pro Tem of the House.

State Senator Terry Jordan

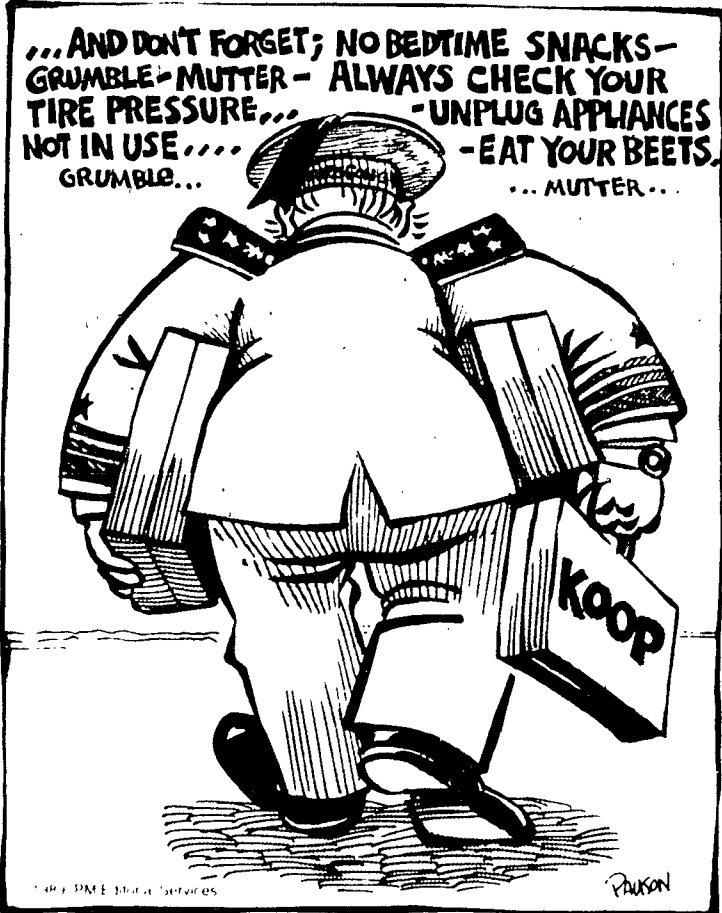

of Philadelphia says, other than education, this will be the state's next major expenditure. He says few of the state's existing landfills meet Environmental Protection Agency standards. When the EPA enters the picture, he said, the state will have to act.

The most controversial part of the debate is likely to center on whether new disposal facilities should be operated by the state or private industry.

Because of the storage and disposal of hazardous waste will be involved, which will affect some state industries as well as economic development, we can begin to envision the magnitude of the problem.

A joint effort on the part of business and government to research the issue and to develop a solution that is best—and safest—for Mississippi should begin now.

As Senator Jordan stated: "Everyone will eventually have to accept some responsibility to effectively deal with the problem."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bay, Waveland, Hancock pay highest gas prices

Dear Editor:

Is there a conspiracy by oil companies, their distributors and dealers against Waveland, Bay St. Louis and Hancock County?

Earlier in spring when the media reported retail gas prices jumped 10 to 12 cents, stations here went up 29 cents.

Currently gas in Gulfport can be had for as low as 86.9 (self-serve unleaded), other stations offer it for 93.9, most are 97.9.

In Pass Christian it's 99.9 (Gulf) and 99.9 in Long Beach at Phillips 66 and Spur.

Compare that to $1.03 and $1.10 at the same companies here in Hancock. Sure looks like we're getting the short end of the stick.

Perhaps it should also be noted prices are much lower in Slidell, even Poplarville.

Are they trying to tell us we deserve to pay higher prices or are they just reaping higher profits? You be the judge!

Pro-lifers should examine plight of unwanted children

To the Editor:

After reading the column in the July 27 Echo by Dena Bissette about the "Disposable Society" including throw-away children, I'm submitting the following for your consideration, which I feel is very important for the public to know:

Now, I really don't like abortion—even the thought of it, and I certainly don't believe it should be done beyond six weeks following conception, if necessary. So much better to prevent unwanted pregnancies. This can be done only through proper education and/or contraception.

How much better to have planned families loved and nurtured by decent, caring parents, not "accidents" that result in unwanted "throw-away" children who become drags upon society, or the horrible diseases that result from ignorance or lack of knowledge.

It's obvious "pro-lifers" have no actual experience with facts and know nothing about what happens to the unwanted babies they save or attempt to save.

What, for instance, does the "pro-lifer" think creates a huge majority of the incorrigible, conscienceless criminals, pervers, molesters, rapists, drug dealers, and murderers, as well as many hopeless alcoholics and drug addicts?

Unwanted kids—unwanted and unloved. There aren't enough people willing to hold them, hug them, talk to them, bounce them up and down and play with them. So what happens? They don't learn and they don't learn to love.

Instead they are warehoused in halfway foster homes, institutions and orphanages, etc., where unconcerned, uncaring attendants simply walk from one end of huge rooms feeding and changing and ignoring them.

Or else, social service agencies place them into foster care homes, separating brothers and sisters, and shift them around from one foster home to another while bureaucrats are too busy with paperwork.

These children are thus delivered into a hell-on-earth—actually a living death, if I may say so!

Most are completely unadoptable—the great majority being black, chicano, Indian or Asians. White couples wanting to adopt a baby have to wait out long lists because there aren't too many white babies to go around.

Hence, these unwanted kids—rejected, ignored, put down and mentally abused and beaten, grow up hating especially the women who've rejected or neglected them by ignorance and lack of love and care, or hating those pseudo-parents or attendants who rejected them, abused them by physical or psychological domination, beatings, sexually molesting or violating them.

Indigent teen mothers forced to raise unwanted kids almost always become new welfare cases at even greater cost to taxpayers!

Foolish anti-abortionists should wake up to reality!

As for "sex education," no child six years or older believes such nonsense as "the birds and bees," etc. Whether parents like it or not, most kids quickly learn all the wrong things about sex from peers and older kids.

Nature being a powerful force in life, they will experiment!

"Pro-lifers" should be required to adopt the unwanted babies they save or attempt to save, being told their job is to turn these hopeless cast-off kids into thinking, feeling, loving human beings—not animals who hate all women—hate society and authority, but useful, productive individuals whose accomplishments we can all take pride in! However, I don't see this as possible due to people who live in unimaginative, emotional dream worlds with no conception of reality or facts.

I speak from experience and actual observation, not from imagined fantasies, emotional theories or opinions, having fostered with love and care more than a hundred of these rejected children (I've adopted two) and raised my own natural children as well.

We haven't yet considered the reality of grossly overcrowding populations—the rapidly pyramiding overpopulations which will soon destroy our planet through pollution, destruction of environment, crime, famine, pestilence, disease, and wars! Wake up!

Have you hugged your child lately?

Sincerely,
Paul D. Gilbert

Dye opposes PEER investigation of nursing home bill

Over strong opposition from Lt. Gov. Brad Dye, the Legislative PEER committee is proceeding with an unprecedented investigation of a House-Senate conference committee action on a nursing home bill passed at the 1989 legislative session.

Behind the scenes, Dye has been trying to torpedo the investigation on grounds that PEER, the investigative arm of the Legislature, does not have authority to investigate action of a legislative committee, or any part of the legislative process.

Dye, according to one legislative source, has become so angered over the investigation that he has threatened to seek to have PEER's appropriation killed in the 1990 session if it pursues the probe.

Meanwhile, a brand-new attorney general's opinion has given PEER new ammunition to probe legislative actions in the same way as it is authorized to investigate other agencies of state government.

The AG's opinion had been given to State Rep. Tommy Horne of Meridian on July 20, in response to Horne's inquiry of whether or not PEER had the authority to investigate actions of legislators relative to conflicts of interest.

In the opinion, special Assistant Attorney General Larry Clark held that under the statute creating the PEER Committee the Legislature comes within the definition of an "agency" of government which is subject to broad review by PEER.

The powers of PEER, further said the opinion "are sufficiently broad to allow PEER to investigate actions of the members of the Legislature with regard to possible conflicts of interest" the same as other agencies of government.

PEER on May 23 had authorized its staff to launch a probe requested by the Biloxi City Council of the circumstances under which a provision in the bill to designate the old Biloxi Regional Medical Center as a 150-bed nursing home for Alzheimer's Disease patients was removed at the last minute in the conference committee.

However, because of the storm of protest raised by Dye that PEER could not investigate the legislative process, the probe was suspended pending the July 26 meeting of the full PEER Committee.

Tate appointed chairman of insurance committee

Senator Margaret "Wootsie" Tate if Picaune said that she is very pleased to have been appointed chairman of the Senate Insurance Committee.

Tate was named to the post by Lieutenant Governor Brad Dye to replace Wayne Burkes who was elected Central District highway commissioner. She had been serving as vice chairman since 1988.

"Insurance has always been one of my priorities during my years in the Legislature. In the 1990 Session, we plan to look at a number of complex issues which could hopefully give some relief to our people. Some of these include a risk pool for persons who are unable to obtain health insurance, some form of compulsory or no-fault automobile insurance, and student health care insurance," Senator Tate said.

She noted that she has just returned from a National Conference of Insurance Legislators meeting in Boston where "the real thrust of the convention was health care."

"It's amazing what a growing problem health care insurance is nationwide. I gained a number of good ideas such as trying to get into our schools a low-cost health insurance plan like the accident plans we had in the past. This is something we really hadn't thought about in Mississippi, but it is an idea that deserves exploring. It would not only get at least the children in the family insured, it would

At one point, it was learned, Dye threatened to have a PEER investigator arrested by the Senate security officer if he attempted to interview a senator at the Capitol.

A motion to rescind the previous authorization of the probe was pushed by Senate members at the July 26 meeting, but it failed to get the necessary majority of the five House members on the committee.

"I believe Dye had called his people in and rolled them over the coals for starting the investigation," said Rep. Hillman Frazier of Jackson, a member of PEER.

Initially in May, Sen. Bunky Huggins of Greenwood and Sen. Roger Wicker made the motion to launch the PEER investigation. Both Huggins and Wicker had been on the joint conference committee which handled the nursing home bill.

"I'm not trying to stop the investigation," Dye told this column, "I don't feel one committee can investigate another. I don't think they should be investigating the reasons why somebody did something or didn't do something."

John Turcotte, executive director of PEER, said the investigation would not try to "get inside the heads of legislators to find out why they did what they did...that would not be proper."

What Peer will try to find out, Turcotte said, "is if there was any improper lobbying of the committee; if someone outside the Legislature tried to put pressure on them and what was the legislative intent of the changes in the bill."

Huggins had told this column in June that while the bill was in conference, he had been contacted by former state Sen. George Smith of Gulfport, now director of the Harrison County Tourism Commission, in opposition to granting the Alzheimer's unit to the Biloxi facility.

The Greenwood senator said Smith had wrongly informed him that additional nursing home beds were not needed on the Coast because there were already 3,000 vacant beds. He learned from the State Department of Health, Huggins said, there was actually need for 756 more beds.

Smith's wife and father-in-law, Conner Cain, both own nursing homes in the coastal area.

stress to the young the importance of having insurance," Tate said.

She said that another priority of the committee will be to redefine the fire district laws and try to establish fire department standards and methods for grading. She said that she has been working with the Attorney General's office, Fire Academy, fire departments and interested citizens to develop a proposal.

Tate, who represents Pearl River, Stone, Hancock and Harrison Counties is serving her sixth year in the Legislature. She is the only female to serve as a committee chairman.

Never mind what program's on;
let's check out the commercials

Are television commercials unbelievable these days or what?

I'm not in the habit of watching television, but when I had to sit home for about three days with a broken foot propped up on a chair, I saw some really nutty commercials.

Some of them are cute. One of my favorite commercials of all time is a Mississippi Power Commercial where a mother comes in, makes a comment to a baby in a crib about being cold, and adjusts a thermostat on the wall.

Another family member comes in, comments to the baby about the room being too hot and readjusts the thermostat. The baby, meanwhile, is looking at these people as if they are all nuts.

After the pitch for Mississippi Power, the camera zooms in on the baby's hand, which is adjusting the thermostat.

A new one I saw that I liked also centered around a kid who was still little and cute.

Kids make great commercials, especially the one for the bendable plastic wastebasket where the little guy runs into the trash can with his tricycle and bounces off.

That one's a lot better than the canine with the bad breath problem who's covering his mouth with his paw because none of his animal buddies will talk to him.

At least with these three, I know what somebody is trying to sell me, and I'm not going to be offended because the women are portrayed as modern-day Mrs. Olsens who have cans of coffee hidden everywhere, including behind the toilet tank.

I am rather offended when an absolutely gorgeous model comes out of nowhere, slinks over to a luxury car parked in the middle of extremely scenic nowhere, and drapes herself all over the vehicle.

What offends me isn't the sexy stereotype of the woman; what offends me is that I can't figure out if they're trying to sell the car, the designer dress the model is wearing, her jewelry or her body.

If I see this chick scrubbing a floor, I know somebody's trying to sell me a cleaning product or an easy-care floor covering. I don't like commercials where I can't tell what the sponsors want me to buy.

Some of these commercials may be artistic videos, but until the product name flashes on the screen at the end of the 60-second spot, I don't know if they're trying to sell me the jeans, the tennis shoes or a trip to someplace resembling the French Riviera.

Fantasy is okay, like the beer commercial where the two astronauts can't leave a planet with an all-female population and an unending supply of their favorite light beer.

But these new things, which I call "designer commercials" because they somehow remind me of Brooke Shields and her half-zipped designer jeans, use a reality background.

At least I can laugh at the fantasy stuff, like the lady who saves her carpet with a play any wide receiver would love to make, or the outmoded heating system sucking up the dollar bills, one by one.

The best commercials I found, of course, were on during prime time. The later at night the television is on, the worse the commercials get. A lot of them go to the testimonial type, and I'm not talking about people saying the headache powder worked for them or that product B wins the taste test.

I'm talking about worn-out television personalities, people whose shows were cancelled years ago, pushing products like correspondence schools, charities and insurance programs for people over 65.

Okay, I can believe that they contribute to the charities and buy the insurance, but am I really supposed to believe that the girl who played Archie Bunker's daughter 10 years ago has anything at all to do with a school that teaches truck-driving and gun repair?

There's always the 100-words-per-second announcer who's so excited about the greatest little plastic gadget you just can't live without; that thing always sells for $9.95. It's just like the tape with one greatest hit from each of a dozen has-been artists, which is always $12.95 for the cassette.

I even found a cable channel I'm calling "Buy Me T.V." because all it shows is a long commercial for things you can buy by phone.

Can we transplant all the other commercials to that channel? No wonder I don't watch much television; I might be tempted to buy something I can't identify.

Chevron passes 19,000 feet

Drilling in the first-ever deep drilling attempt in the Mississippi Sound has reached a depth of 19,600 feet.

A Chevron USA spokesperson said drilling has been proceeding without major obstacle as the crew aims for a target depth of 23,500 feet.

Chevron has invested a total of $19,904,950 in the Mississippi Sound project through mid-July. The Mississippi economy has directly benefitted through taxes and expenditures for shore-based support services.

Andy Rawicki, the Chevron engineer in charge of the project, said the rig drills approximately 142 feet per day, depending on the depth, with the average movement being about five feet per hour. He said the drilling becomes more difficult the deeper the penetration and "we expect to reach the target in late Fall."

First Missionary Baptist hosts Youth Fellowship Week

First Missionary Baptist Church, corner Third and Sycamore Streets, has scheduled Youth Fellowship Week activities August 7-11 nightly at 7 p.m.

Themes will be as follows: Monday, 'Follow Jesus'; Tuesday, 'A Salute to America'; Wednesday, 'A Journey in Black History'; Thursday, 'Tribute to Parent'; and Friday, 'Move Up On the Mountain'.

The Reverend William Harper is pastor.

Marriage encounter weekend planned

A marriage encounter weekend has been set for Friday, Aug. 11 through Sunday, Aug. 13 at the Holiday Inn in Biloxi, according to Alan and Rosemary Fries, area coordinators.

The weekend will be sponsored by the Gulf-Lake Marriage Encounter Community, comprising St. Tammany Parish in Louisiana and the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

The weekend will begin at 8 p.m. on Friday and conclude Sunday afternoon.

Marriage Encounter is for any married couple who desires a richer and fuller life together. The weekend can make a good marriage a great marriage, according to the couple. They describe the weekend as a personal experience between husband and wife that revitalizes a marriage by teaching a new communication technique. This technique enables a couple to privately explore important areas of their relationship in a spirit of love and understanding.

Couples interested in finding out more about the Marriage Encounter weekend may contact Dan and Pam Griffon at 452-2092, Pass Christian.

Marriage Encounter weekends are sponsored every other month by the Gulf-Lake Community of World Wide Marriage Encounter, a non-profit organization.

Reflections On Life

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Communication is sharing life

Beyond the shadow of a doubt, the single most necessary thing in life—and the most difficult—is communication. Not word. Not talking. Not writing. Not sign language. Communication—which may or may not be accomplished by any or all the above, and which is at times accomplished best through neither of the above.

Nowhere is the importance of communication so obvious and so overwhelming as in the primeval desire of God to communicate the marvel of life itself, proper to God alone, yet eagerly and generously to be shared with all us creatures.

Communication specialists give us five principles to guide us toward effective, meaningful communication. The first of these, "People must show appreciation for each other," is again expressed best in God's primeval desire to show us the ultimate appreciation:

"God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him may not die, but may have eternal life." (John 3:16)

If we can appreciate each other sincerely, we won't suffer much pain trying to make one another understand, not even if we have to surmount the barriers of language, handicap and culture. People who have a good feeling about one another are in a position such as God is, eager to communicate and share everything.

"Share new information," is the second principle. This principle runs right off the first principle, as we have just observed. The electric thrill of appreciation, first shown us by God, becomes such a part of us and of our lives that we cannot help but have a most favorable reaction to anyone who appreciates us.

The upshot is that we can't wait to share all new information which is necessary, useful or enjoyable to the one whom we appreciate. This shows us that the second principle of communication is a very natural outcropping of the first.

"Follow complaints with suggestions," is the third principle of communication. Many of us have the habit of communicating, but it is a one-way street, a catalog of what is wrong, a litany of hurts, an unending account of complaints.

Such a constant recitation of defects does a bit of good once in a while, but, for the most part, it irritates others and may harden them in their ways.

First of all, nagging in any form is self-defeating and counterproductive. What all of us want to hear is not what is broken, but how can we fix it. The brokenness, the defects and the hurts are always there in some measure. We need some concrete, clear steps which can take us toward remedy and healing.

"Assume nothing," is the fourth principle. Perhaps the most telling comment on this principle is the facetious division of the word "ass/ume," stating that assuming will invariably make exactly that of u and me.

At any rate, the only thing which we can assume safely is that, if we assume often enough, we shall surely get burned, embarrassed disappointed, and, sooner or later, downright disgraced.

"Share your wishes, hopes and dreams," is the fifth principle of communication. It is curious to see how close this fifth principle is to the first and the second; in fact, just an extension.

Beginning with God's incredible appreciation of us, followed by God's communication to us by sharing life through Jesus and his Good News, we repay in kind by appreciating each other.

The natural—and supernatural—sequel is that we cannot wait to find ways, means, time and energy to communicate to one another all our wishes, hopes, dreams and all the realities of our lives.

What to do if chest pain grabs your attention.

Don't wait to see what's going to happen next. By then it may be too late. Get help immediately.

Chest pain and pressure are heart attack symptoms. There are others. The pain may radiate down your arm, shoulders or neck. You may become dizzy, break out in a cold sweat, feel faint or sick to your stomach.

Sometimes only a few symptoms occur. Sometimes more. Sometimes the symptoms can even be due to another problem.

Only one thing is certain. The sooner heart problems are treated, the better your chance of recovering to live a full and productive life.

That's why we're here. The Heart Emergency Service at NorthShore Regional Medical Center is the first of its kind in this area. Located in our Emergency Department, we save lives by detecting heart problems rapidly and providing necessary treatment.

If you experience any symptoms of a heart attack, get immediate medical attention. Anytime, day or night, you can call our emergency 24-Hour Heartline at 1-800-HEART-13. An emergency care professional is available around the clock to answer questions, give advice or even dispatch an ambulance if necessary.

The Heart Center at NorthShore Regional Medical Center offers a complete range of cardiac care services. That's important to you during those first critical hours following a heart attack. And although you'll probably never need them, it's good to know our heart team is available 24 hours a day.

We employ powerful clot-dissolving drugs that can save lives by stopping and, in some instances, actually reversing the effects of heart attacks. But the sooner these drugs are administered the better the chance of a complete recovery.

Our advanced diagnostic capabilities, including a state-of-the-art cardiac catheterization laboratory, help us assess and treat heart problems more quickly than ever.

We also offer educational programs to help people prevent heart attacks, and rehabilitation services that help heart patients recover faster and more fully.

Learn more about The Heart Center at NorthShore Regional Medical Center by calling (504) 641-MDMD and we'll send you a free brochure that describes our cardiac care services in greater detail.

Remember, if your heart tries to tell you something, pay attention. Grab the phone. Call 1-800-HEART-13. Or go to the nearest hospital emergency department. If you're close to NorthShore Regional Medical Center, use the Heart Emergency Service in our Emergency Department located just east of Interstate 10 on 190—Exit 266—Gause Boulevard. Right away. Before the problem gets out of hand.

Getting up there

Steeplejack still on top of things at 84

BY D.C. HARVILL

Most are content just knowing people in high places but Irv Darrow has been one—numerous times.

For more than 70 years, the 84-year-old Bay St. Louis resident's profession has taken him to the top—of smoke stacks, silos, water towers, flagpoles and church steeples. Irv Darrow is a steeplejack.

Darrow is known locally for having put the gold gilded ball and cross on top the Main Street United Methodist Church and for painting the courthouse flag pole—when he was '80. Most recently, he repaired the roof of the Antique Arcade on Second Street in Bay St. Louis this past Fourth of July.

Appropriately, Darrow began his daring profession in his native Birnamwood, Wisconsin, after accepting a dare from a friend.

"When I was 13, a friend dared me to climb the village water tank with him. We climbed the tank—104 feet—at night. A week later the village council posted a sign on it (the water tower) saying there was a $5 fine for anyone who climbed the tank," he said.

Shortly after posting the sign, the council found it necessary to have the teenage Darrow duplicate his original thrilling feat.

"Two weeks later, the president of the village came to me and asked me to climb the tank and shake two wires to loosen the water gauge. It was rusted the the rope, cut it and pulled it to the top of the pole.

"That was my first flag pole!" he said.

Three years later, he found himself involved with a water tank again, from the ground up, when he went to work for the Chicago Bridge and Iron works erecting a 140 foot water tower in New London, Wisconsin.

IRVIN DARROW

Since those early days, Darrow has performed a variety of jobs in high places, including the installation of a 29-foot cross on a church in Wausau, Wisconsin. The height of his tell people I learned in the Swiss Navy. They usually just say, 'Oh'. Then I have to tell them the punchline—the Swiss don't have a Navy," he said.

Steeplejacking may be enjoyable work, but it is not without danger; it is listed by insurance companies as one of the five most hazardous professions.

"I've been lucky; I've had quite a few close calls," Darrow said.

With lucidity and detail including exact words said at the time, he describes a close call he had in 1925, while helping construct the water tank in New London.

Once while painting a smoke stack that was in use, his ropes burned in two. Luckily he was only 20 feet off the roof of the factory and was able to walk away unharmed.

"It was winter and I always wore a big sheepskin coat, so it was no problem," he said.

Darrow said when one of the people inside the building came to check on him he told the man he had dropped his ropes.

"I didn't tell him that I had beat them down," he said.

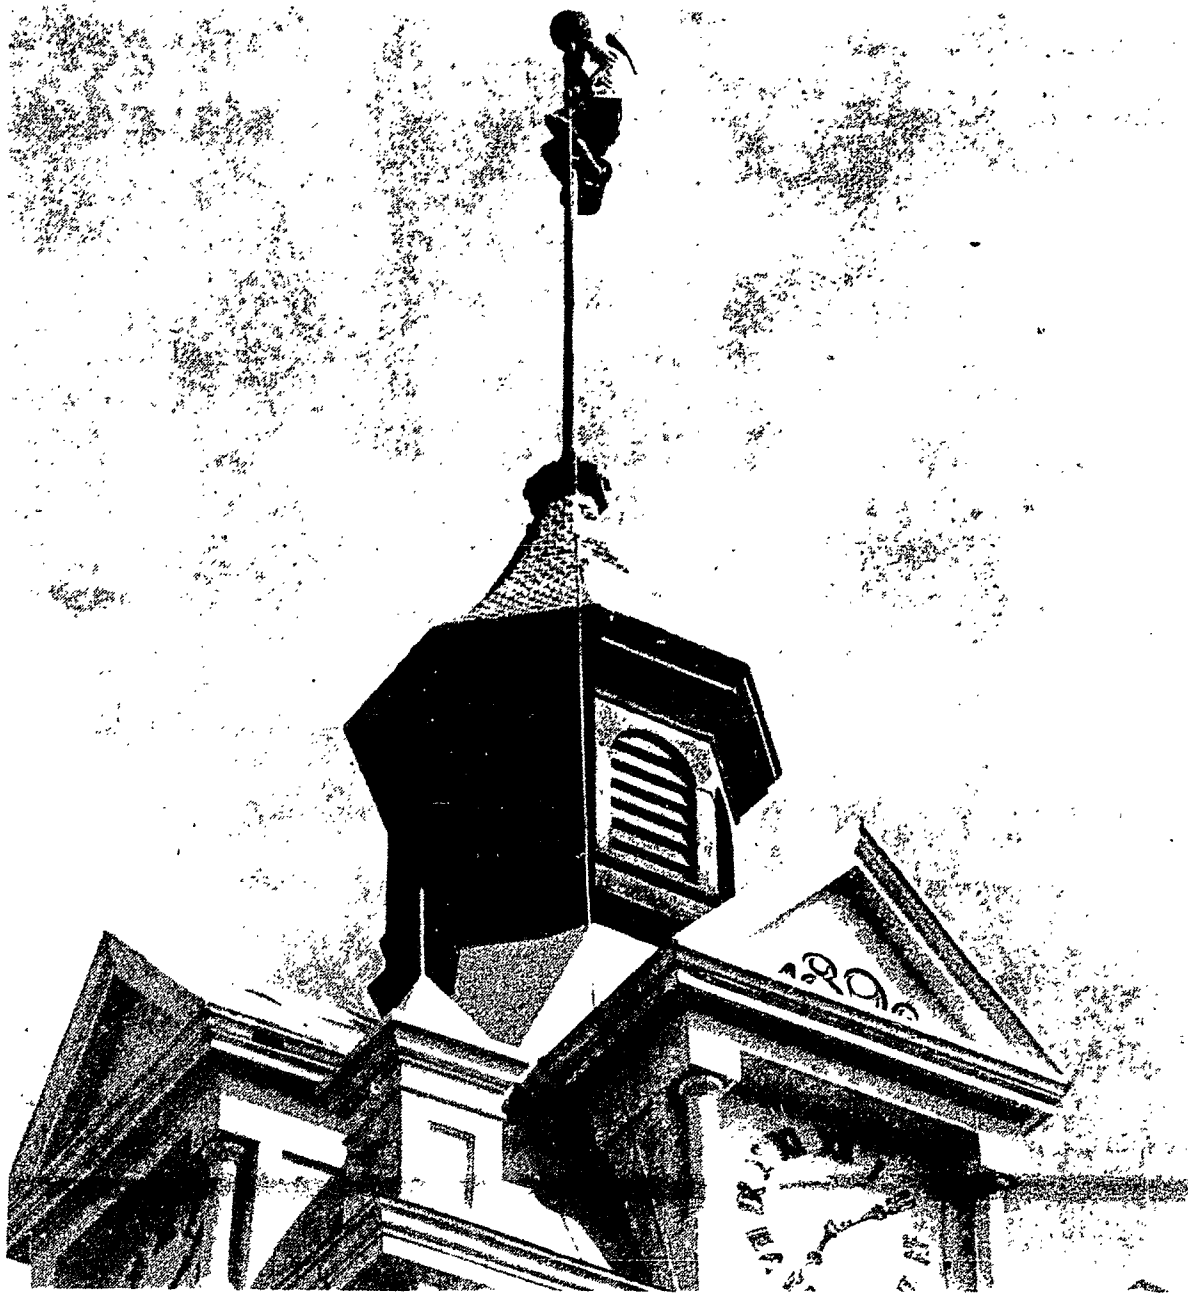

Steeplejack jobs have never been steady, but they are even fewer now, according to Darrow.

"The work is kind of fading out now because of cherry pickers (bucket-type cranes)," he said.

Because of the unsteady nature of steeplejack work, Darrow has had to take on various other jobs, including work as a projectionist and in a door factory, to support his family.

He went to work in the door factory during the depression after a company offered him only $15 to do two 150-foot tall smoke stacks, half the amount he had been paid for the job the year before.

While steeplejack jobs have been all but non-existent since he moved to Bay St. Louis 12 years ago, to be near his son who lives in New Orleans, Darrow is noticeably proud of the jobs he has done here.

He points out that the ball and cross on the Methodist Church are as beautiful today as when he installed them in 1983.

"The secret of doing a good job with gold is to put on two coats of red primer and one coat of white paint to keep the red from bleeding through. You then give a coat of gold paint and glue on the gold," he said.

Darrow donated the work, including the the gold leaf, to the church.

He is especially proud of the work he did on the courthouse flagpole when he was 80.

"The last time they painted it, it took four men half a day; I did it in two hours," he said. "I like flag poles. They are easy jobs."

Darrow said he still works, but only for a few hours in the afternoon. The rest of the time he spends with his invalid wife.

"If you can go the first 100 feet the rest is nothing"—Darrow and they couldn't tell when the tank was filled. I asked him if I would have to pay the $5. He said 'no', so I did it. After that I climbed the tank about twice a month," Darrow said.

When Darrow was a high school sophomore, he was called upon to retrieve a rope from the top of school's flag pole after "pranksters had tied a pair of women's you-know-whats" to career was reached when he painted a steel ladder on a 420-foot cement smoke stack for a paper mill.

"If you can go the first 100 feet the rest is nothing," he said.

Darrow loves being a steeplejack because "you are on your own, no boss," he said.

To be a steeplejack, one must know the ropes—literally.

"When people ask me how I learned to tie all those knots I

Serger Basics

DOWN HOME

By Darlene Underwood
Hancock County
Home Economist

Serger selection

Sergers are changing the concept of home sewing. Sergers, also called overlock machines, produce professional factory-like stitches similar to those seen in ready-to-wear garments. In addition, sergers are a tremendous time-saver for the home sewer.

Sergers sew about two to three times faster than do traditional machines and they can replace three operations with one step by sewing, cutting, and overcasting a seam simultaneously.

A serger does use a needle (or needles) but instead of a bobbin the serger uses loopers. When the machine is operating, the looper threads lock around each other and are linked together with the needle thread to form the stitches.

Most sergers have the capability to make a rolled hem. A rolled hem is a narrow dense stitch made on the edge of the fabric. It gives a professional look, for example, to the finished edges of tablecloths, napkins and ruffles.

Some sergers require a special plate and/or foot to sew a rolled hem. Others can be adjusted for rolled hemming without an attachment.

Types of sergers

Sergers cannot totally replace the traditional sewing machine. They are designed to be used in addition to or in combination with a regular machine. Learning how and when to use a serger with your conventional machine is the key to successful sewing.

Upper loopers

Lower loopers

There are five basic serger machines, including:

- the two thread
- the three thread
- the three-four thread
- the four thread
- the five thread

The two thread has one needle and uses two spools of thread. The two-thread stitch is primarily used as a seam or edge finish and is not designed to stitch a regular seam. Some machines can do a two-thread narrow rolled hem.

The two-thread stitch also is used to do a flatlock seam where two fabric layers are stitched, then pulled apart to the seam allowances are flat inside the stitching. Some three-thread, four-thread, and five-thread machines can do a two-thread stitch.

The three thread has one needle and uses three spools of thread. It is considered a versatile and commonly used serger for home sewing. The three-thread stitch is used as a seam and as an edge finish.

As a seam, it is suitable for woven fabrics, but in areas of stress, stitching should be reinforced with a conventional machine. The stitching is excellent with knit fabric because it stretches or "gives" with the fabric. The three-thread stitch also can be used with specialty threads for a decorative finish. Both rolled hem and flatlock stitches can be made on three-thread machines.

The three-four thread has two needles and uses four spools of thread. It is similar to a three-thread stitch but for added durability has an additional line of straight stitching running through the middle of the three-thread stitch.

It can be used to stitch seams in woven fabric even in areas of as draperies).

The five thread has two needles and uses up to five spools of thread. This machine can sew a two-thread, a three-thread, and a two-thread chain stitch. There are three loopers: an upper, a left, and a right. All five threads are utilized if seaming with a chain stitch and three-thread stitch simultaneously. Any of the three stitches can be isolated and used alone.

Roller edge hemming and flatlocking can be stitched with this machine. It is the most versatile of all the machines because of the possible variations. However, some people may find it more complicated to operate.

For additional information selecting a serger call or drop by the Extension office and ask for "Serger Selection" Publication 1602.

Serger workshop slated Aug. 17-18

Upper loopers, lower loopers, tension dials and spools...do you have a new serger but aren't sure how to use it? Maybe you've had it for awhile but need help getting the most use from your machine.

A free two-day workshop will be held Thursday and Friday, Aug. 17 and 18, 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Classes will be conducted at the Bay St. Louis Library on Hwy. 90.

Participants are required to bring a serger and all supplies needed for the workshop. Class size is limited. Call 467-5456 to pre-register. Additional information will be mailed closer to the date.

Participants will make samples that will go in a resource notebook for later reference, in addition to quick projects that can be used as gifts.

The program will be conducted by Darlene Underwood, Extension home economist, and is open to any interested individual.

A luncheon was held at the Sheraton Hotel in Jackson following the meeting.

and nine-year district attorney and 18-year executive director of the Mississippi Employment Security Commission, in a statement following his election, said:

"Our association has come a long way in our four-year existence and is justly proud of its record of accomplishments, particularly the passage of a Constitutional Amendment by an 85 percent vote to protect our trust funds, the provision for insurance coverage for many not covered by the state plan, raises in benefit checks, and other safe-guarding and beneficial legislation.

"The number of public employee retirees receiving benefits approximates 30,000, and our trust fund has soared to over four billion dollars," he said.

"Our association will continue its positive programs of activity and concern not only to retirees but also the 125,000 public employees of city, county and state government who also have a direct interest in what happens to our state retirement.

"We need the help and fully support of all of you. We have voted to open the doors for associate membership to active working public employees, and we plan an intensive membership and county organization campaign in order to be a more effective voice in representing all of your best interests and concerns," Aldridge said.

WEDDINGS, ENGAGEMENTS

Smith-Aime

Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church was the setting for the July 1 marriage of Melissa Lynn Aime and Dexter Leodis Smith, both of Bay St. Louis. The Reverend Cuthbert O'Connell officiated at the afternoon double ring ceremony.

Flower girls were Courtney Davis, cousin of the bride, and Angelle Smith, niece of the groom, both of Bay St. Louis.

The attendants were identically attired in tea length gowns of lavender satin overlaid with lace, each fashioned with dropped waist, sweetheart neckline and puffed sleeves with a bow at the back.

Bridesmaids carried cascades of lavender silk roses, ribbon and sparkling baby's breath, while flower girls carried wicker baskets of identical flowers.

Wayne Crosby of Port Charlotte, Fla., cousin of the groom, was best man.

Groomsmen were Ricky Smith and Dennis Smith, brothers of the groom, and Sid LeBlanc, brother-in-law of the groom, all of Bay St. Louis; and James Burkes of Heilbronn, Germany, brother-in-law of the groom.

E. V. (Gus) Aime of Bay St. Louis, uncle and godfather of the bride, was usher.

Ring bearers were Connors Ladner of Baton Rouge, cousin of the bride; and Shawn Decrevel of Carriere, nephew of the groom.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Hancock County Civic Center.

On return from a wedding trip to New Orleans, the couple will reside in Port Charlotte, Fla.

MR. AND MRS.
DEXTER SMITH

The bride is a daughter of Vic and Linda Aime of Bay St. Louis. The groom's parents are Leodis and Johnnie Smith, also of Bay St. Louis.

Nuptial music was presented by organist Mrs. John McKenna and soloist Mrs. Cheryl Thomas, cousin of the groom, both of Bay St. Louis.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of ivory satin fashioned with fitted bodice featuring a beaded collar, high neckline with English net yoke adorned with lace appliques and pearls and puffed sleeves. The detachable cathedral length train was trimmed in beaded lace appliques and was accented with a bow at the back waistline. A fingertip veil of illusion fell from a wreath of flowers and pearls.

The bride carried a cascade of ivory silk roses, stephanotis, tiny sweetheart lavender roses, lily-of-the-valley and pearl sprays with sparkling baby's breath.

Denise Aime of Baton Rouge attended her sister as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Leslie Aime, sister of the bride, and Rhonda LeBlanc, sister of the groom, both of Bay St. Louis; Gwen Ladner of Metairie, cousin of the bride; and Dede Bermond of Charleston, S. C.
